

FRUIT TREES ADD VALUE AND BEAUTY TO PROPERTY

December Meeting of Horticultural Society Held at the Workhouse Wednesday—Officers Elected. Schedule of Meeting Places For Next Year.

Superintendent and Mrs. E. M. Boyer played the part of host and hostess to the members of the Stark County Horticultural society, at their regular monthly meeting at the county workhouse, Wednesday. Every moment of the day passed by so enjoyably that all of the members were unanimous in declaring that the meeting ranked prominently among the many successful ones held during the year. Along with the general order of business and social entertainment, the annual election of the officers was held and the reports of the past year were heard, the interest in which attracted more than the usual attendance.

The greater part of the morning was devoted to a trip of inspection about the institution. The visitors were conducted about the building by Superintendent Boyer. Following the inspection of the building, dinner was served to ninety members of the society, their friends and other visitors. In the afternoon the members of the society got down to real business. One of the first matters disposed of was the annual election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, C. W. Faust, Canton; vice president, E. S. Graybill, Canton; secretary, Mrs. S. O. Eggert, Massillon; treasurer, W. H. Hershey, Canton. The following members will compose the executive committee for the coming year: William Ritter, Canton; D. M. Nicwander, New Berlin; S. P. Killinger, Massillon.

The subject of discussion for the meeting was "The Planting of Vines and Trees," upon which G. E. Sutton, of Paris, O., prepared an excellent essay. Following the reading of the essay by Mr. Sutton, a number of the members indulged in a discussion of the subject, which resulted in the exchange of many valuable ideas.

The essay of Mr. Sutton in part follows: "Believing that every farmer, or I should say every man that owns enough of land to have the room, should plant at least a few trees of some variety, preferably fruit trees for the farmers. I will give the following reasons why tree planting should be encouraged:

"1. They increase the value of the property as well as add to the beauty of the same. Nor does it stop there for they increase the value of the surrounding property. 2. They add beauty and comfort to the city streets and to the farm yard and lawn. 3. They protect the house, the walks and the lawn from the heat of the sun in the summer, and from the cold winds in the winter. Last but not least, they are a source of income to the owner which many fail to realize and which a few fail to appreciate.

"Every farmer should at least plant enough of fruit trees and vines to supply his family with plenty of good wholesome fruit, and my planting different varieties, he can have it fresh from the tree or vine, for the table about half of the year.

"But do not think that I would have every farmer to be a fruit grower for the market. Far from it. Leave that to the specialist.

"The first question to consider in the planting of trees, and one which is often asked is 'when is the best time to plant?' My experience has been mainly with spring planting, and from actual observation I believe that to be the best time.

"The next question to be settled is the location. In selecting a location, several things are to be considered. 1st. For convenience to the house plant as closely to the house as possible, and to the west, as the trees will then serve as a protection from the strong winds. 2nd. The ground should be high with a natural drainage, if possible, and if not, it should be underdrained. And if the ground slopes to the north or east, so much the better, for the trees will not be forced out quite so early in the spring and there will be less danger from the frost.

"Having decided when to plant and selected a location, we are now ready to begin operations. Appeal to some nursery agent to assist you in making a selection of a tree. Order your stock early. The nursery agent will ship the trees as soon as the weather will permit. If they arrive before you are ready to plant, place them in the cellar and keep the roots damp. If this is done they can be set at any time.

"Next is preparation of the ground. First give it a coat of good manure; then plow early, and as soon as the earth is fit, harrow and work until it is in good condition to plant any kind of a crop. We are ready now to begin setting the trees. Some advise plowing a furrow or ditch to plant in, for trees or vines that are set some distance apart. I prefer to set stakes to go by and dig the hole where the tree is wanted. And I prefer to plant the tree as soon as the hole is dug. By so doing the ground has but little chance to dry out. Care should be taken to have the hole large enough to receive the tree with its roots in their natural position, without crossing or bending. Some place manure in the bottom of the hole, but this is not advisable. If the season should be a dry one, the roots would be injured to some extent by this practice.

"Now take the tree in hand and cut off all of the broken or bruised roots, using a sharp knife. Occasionally it is advisable to shorten a long root. Be careful to save as many of the tiny feeder roots as possible, for it is from these that the tree gets its life.

"Stand the tree in the ground and with a glance you can decide to cut the top all away, leaving only a straight stem upon which to form a new head, or to shape a head from the limbs already grown. I prefer the latter way if the tree is young and stocky with plenty of branches. Select four or five branches equally distributed around the body of the tree, and a little lower than you wish to have a head. After cutting the rest away trim these to a uniform length. If the stock is long and slim with few branches, cut off at the height you wish the head to form. Place the tree in the hole with the roots in their natural position.

Turn the heavy side of top towards the prevailing wind, and lean a little against the wind.

"Fill in the surface dirt first, being careful to work it in around the roots, and pack it by tramping as the filling proceeds, until near the top. When the planting is completed the tree should stand a little deeper than when in the nursery. Be careful not to plant too close. Air and sunshine are very essential in growing fruit. Keep them well pruned while growing. The question is often asked, 'when is the best time to prune?' The old maxim is: 'Prune whenever your knife is sharp.' By pruning often, the limbs will not get large enough to hurt the tree by cutting at any time. Keep the ground clean by cultivating some hoed crop for two or three years.

The report of the treasurer showed that the finances of the organization were in excellent condition. The report of the secretary was equally as encouraging. The membership of the society is about 80, increasing considerably during the year.

A number of the members had several fine exhibits at the meeting. The largest of these was owned by President Faust. S. L. Correll, who recently returned to Canton from Washington, was among those present at the meeting. He displayed some fine specimens of Washington apples, and gave a glowing description of the northwest to the members.

HARRY KNOBLOCH MAY CLAIM OFFICE

For Next Term Which Begins Sept. 29—Has Received Certificate of Election But Makes No Statement. The Alliance Leader publishes a statement to the effect that Harry C. Knobloch, ex-treasurer, who resigned his position shortly after the November election, will in all probabilities claim the office for the coming term.

When asked last evening by the News whether there was any truth in the report, Mr. Knobloch replied: "Have not given the matter the least bit of consideration since I resigned and the next term of office does not begin until Sept. 29, 1909, and plenty of time to consider all matters relating to the treasurership should I lay claim to the office to which I was elected last fall."

A certificate of election has been issued to Mr. Knobloch by the board of elections, which was forced to issue the certificate, inasmuch as ex-Treasurer Knobloch's name was regularly on the ballot and he received the largest number of votes in the November election.

Chief Wilkie Cloistered With President. Washington, Dec. 18.—Secret service and Brownsville affair exhaustively discussed at today's cabinet meeting. Chief Wilkie was cloistered with the president. Loeb announced there would be no secret service message until after the holidays. General opinion is that the message won't mention any member of present congress as under suspicion.

BROTHERS IN BLOODY DUEL

FINE TUBERS

Raised on Workhouse Grounds Exhibited to Horticulturalists

SPECIAL XMAS DINNER

While the Horticultural society members were being conducted about the workhouse yesterday, Superintendent Boyer pointed with pride to the large bins of potatoes in the basement. "Nine hundred bushels," declared the superintendent, and the visitors were able to catch the tone of pride in his voice as he said it. "All raised on those lots around here," he continued, as he pointed a finger out of the window, "and I will put them against those of any other farmer in Stark county."

Examination of the potatoes brought forth exclamations of delight from the Horticulturalists. They were in their element. These 900 bushels they declared, were just about the finest they had ever seen. The "small potato" was no where in evidence. "Monster" spuds" sold to the core, filled the bins to their utmost capacity.

The crop this year eclipsed all former outputs in the history of the institution. The 900 bushels will more than supply the inmates of the workhouse all winter. The local workhouse, surrounded as it is, with fertile and productive lands, is able to more adequately provide for its prisoners, than the majority of those throughout the United States. Grumbling among the prisoners over the fare is a rarity.

Following the established custom at the workhouse, the prisoners will be served a special dinner on Christmas. Following this the men will be treated to a smoke by the superintendent, and the women will be given candy by Mrs. Boyer.

Andrews Decorating company of Clinton, Ia., concerning the payment of the balance of $1000 due the company on the re-decorating and refinishing of the interior of the court house, has finally been settled. The commissioners have given Auditor Oberlin permission to deliver the voucher. The payment was held up by the commissioners on account of part of the work not being satisfactory or in direct accordance with the specifications. After the work was rejected the decorating company spent several days in fixing up the wall decorations in the corridors on the first floor and also on the stair way leading to the second floor.
